Visual Effects Society, or Association of Specialists of Special Effects chosen another winner of its Visionary Award. It was JJ Abrams, director include "Star Trek" and "Super 8", currently working on the set of "Star Wars: Episode VII". The award will be presented during the gala 13th VES Awards, which will be held on February 4.

VES Visionary Award is granted in recognition of his creative contribution to the development of techniques for special effects. The winners are filmmakers who have their artistry, inventiveness and groundbreaking achievements nourish the imagination and provoke further discoveries.

Abrams also directed "Mission: Impossible III" and "In darkness. Star Trek". He also produced "Project: Monster" and "Mission: Impossible - Ghost Protocol". He also worked in television, where he put his hand to such series as "Felicity", "Alias", "Lost" and "Fringe: On the border of the Worlds". He has his own production company Bad Robot. In previous years, the prize was getting, among others, in the hands of Christopher Nolan and Ang Lee. Last year, it was Alfonso Cuarón, director of "Gravity".
