On stage, Saldana, who's been married to husband Marco Perego since 2013, gushed about Abrams as a director and a friend. "He writes his thank you cards in person and that means a lot," she began. "He's a father, a friend, a husband, a son, a teacher, a student, a director, a storyteller. I don't know, he's like, cool! So those are my two cents."

And Abrams thinks just as highly of his leading lady. When asked about Saldana being the one to present him the award, the Star Wars: Episode VII - The Force Awakens director told Us Weekly, "Zoe is among the funniest, most out-there, most daring, honest, beautiful people I know. It's a true honor, maybe the biggest honor of tonight, having her here to present the award."
